Judicial Election.

The returns continue to look more favorable for Dixon's election. The soldiers appear to understand that Cothren was the copperhead candidate, and spot him unflinchingly, wherever they have an opportunity to vote.

Gen. Foster Not Relieved.

We had hoped to hear to-day that Gen. Foster's command at Washington, N. C. which has been surrounded for several days by the enemy, had been relieved; but it appears that this is so far from being the case, that there is danger that he will be compelled to surrender. The enemy appear to be in very large force, and are threatening Newbern.

The Battle at Charleston.

We have news, to-day, direct from the fleet at Charleston. The fight took place on Tuesday, the 7th. Our Monitor fleet did not succeed in the plan of attack, in consequence of the obstructions which were found, in the shape of a network of chains, extending from Fort Sumter to Fort Moultrie. This attack, or reconnaissance, should be regarded as a failure, and some other plan adopted. The attempt to pass the two principal forts without first reducing them is proved to be impossible. Whether our iron clads are equal to the task of demolishing Forts Sumter and Moultrie is yet to be seen, but from the effect of their fire upon the walls of Sumter, it would seem that there is hope. From the tenor of our latest dispatches we may expect that another bombardment will soon take place, and we trust with better success.

The Copperhead Majority in Milwaukee.

In commenting upon the enormous majority obtained by the copperheads in Milwaukee, boldly designated as such by the News, we took occasion to express our regret that we have a city in Wisconsin which holds such sentiments, and suggesting that its appropriate place would be as a suburb of Richmond or Charleston. The Wisconsin thinks that we are too general in our denunciations, contending that there is a minority in that city who are true to principle, and have worked for years under very discouraging circumstances.

There may be such men there, but they make no sign so that true men in other parts of the state can recognize them. The republican organization there appears, generally, to be content to divide its principles with some half-way democrats, and its political work appears in compromise nominations, which represent no principle, except the "five leaves and two fishes." It is very discouraging to labor with such an organization in an attempt to elect a state ticket. To be overborne, year after year, by four or five thousand majority against us in Milwaukee, is not pleasant to Rock county republicans. It is especially disgusting to us, when we consider that much of it is the result of mismanagement.

The Wisconsin itself recently gave a graphic picture of the political supineness which is so prevalent in Milwaukee on the part of our friends. In commenting upon the judicial election there, it said: "We hope that another election may never pass by, when the Union men of this city will remain passive, and allow themselves to be swallowed up without the faintest sign of resistance. It is disgraceful, and shabby. Stand up for your colors under all circumstances, and if you must surrender, let it be like that of the Cumberland, amidst the thunder of your guns as you go down."

When the Union men and republicans of Milwaukee follow this advice, we shall find no fault with them, but be ready to do them honor.

THE SOLDIERS' VOTE.—The following returns of the Wisconsin regiments, for chief justice, are in addition to those reported by telegraph to-day: Four companies of the 13th regiment, Dixon 156; Cothren 13; seven companies of the 25th regiment, Dixon 349, Cothren 31; one company of the 31st regiment, Dixon 51, Cothren 1; six companies of the 34th regiment, (drafted men—a small regiment,) Dixon 103, Cothren 65.

THE SOLDIERS' VOTE.—We learned at Madison this morning, that up to Saturday night, returns of about 3,000 votes had been received from the army. Of this number, Dixon had about 3,000 and Cothren 300. The "Iron brigade" of Gen. Gibbons gave Dixon about 500 majority. In some companies Cothren did not receive a vote.

MILITARY.—Commissioners have been issued by the governor to the following officers in the 33d regiment: 1st Lieut. Wm. L. Scott as Captain Co. F, vice Wemple deceased; 2d Lieut. Charles W. Stark as 1st Lieut. Co. F, vice Scott, promoted; Jas. H. Stickle as 2d Lieut. Co. F, vice Stark, promoted.

COLUMBIA COUNTY.—Dixon's majority in this county is 859, with the town of Hampden to hear from.

Last Night's Report.

GREAT NAVAL BATTLE AT CHARLESTON!

WASHINGTON, April 11.

The Richmond, Wis., of the 10th, has the following:

"All is quiet. The people and the troops are in high spirits at the result of yesterday's fight. The Keokuk is certainly sunk about 1000 yards from Morris Island. Many pieces of her furniture, eyeglasses, etc., have been washed ashore. These articles are covered with clotted blood, creating the impression that the slaughter on her was terrible.

"The fighting between the iron-clads and the forts was at a distance of nine hundred yards. The monitors cannot pass Fort Sumter without coming within five hundred yards of the batteries.

"Seven monitors and iron-clads are off the harbor. Two have gone south.

"The Yankee machine for removing torpedoes, called the 'Devil,' has floated ashore, and is in our hands.

"The Yankees have been repairing damages all day."

LATER.

"CHARLESTON, April 9, morning.

"All is quiet. The monitors are still in sight."

NEW YORK, April 12, midnight.

The following dispatch has been received from a gentleman on board the steamer Mary Sanford:

MOREHEAD CITY, N. C., April 10, via Fort Monroe, April 12.—We passed through the fleet off Charleston, on Thursday the 9th inst., at 10 A. M. The weather was clear and pleasant. The monitors were lying along the beach off Cumming's Point, all in good order. We were boarded by one of the pilots of the expedition, who stated that the Ironsides and several of the monitors attacked Sumter on Tuesday, the 7th, and our passed some distance above the forts, receiving some 300 shots. A pointed shot of English manufacture penetrated the iron-clad Whitney battery Keokuk, and she sunk in 12 hours after near the beach. The other iron-clads passed through the shower of shot and shell uninjured, or with trifling damage. The casualties reported were very few. Captain Rhind of the Keokuk was slightly injured by a bolt. The 1st monitor and six men on board the Nantucket were killed.

As regards the future movements, reports are conflicting. It was positively stated by one of the pilots who boarded the monitors would withdraw over the bar, and further action for the present would be suspended. This was subsequently corroborated by a reporter for a New York paper.

An officer from the James Adger, who previously boarded us, stated that the engagement would be renewed about 1 P. M. He added that the admiral expressed his belief of success.

No torpedoes are reported to have exploded. We left the fleet on time. When about 25 miles north we heard heavy firing.

The above was a private message addressed to Col. Sanford.

Fort Monroe, April 12.

The Mary Sanford arrived at Morehead City, Friday, from off Charleston, arriving with the information of the attack, which commenced at three o'clock on Tuesday, the 7th, and lasted three hours. The Keokuk passed half a mile above Fort Sumter, where she met obstructions, at which a terrific firing was kept up on both sides, when she received a shot that went through her between wind and water, and from which she sank in less than 12 hours.

The Keokuk was within 200 yards of Fort Sumter, and received a shell at the junction of the turret with the deck, which prevented the turret from revolving, and disabled her from action for the time. The Ironsides received 150 shots, sustaining no further damage than the starting of a few bolts. The rest of the fleet hauled off, the object of the reconnaissance being accomplished, which was to ascertain the locality of the obstructions.

Our entire loss was two killed and seven wounded.

As the Sanford left, some iron-clads were going to blow up the Keokuk. The shot was from a rifle cannon of the heaviest calibre. Capt. Rhind, her commander, received a contusion on the leg from a flying splinter off his vessel, which only slightly lamed him. Twelve of the men were wounded, together with the acting ensign McIntosh, who had charge of one of the guns. The injuries are supposed to be fatal. The next morning finding it impossible to save the vessel, Capt. Rhind called a tug, which took all his men on board. A few minutes thereafter the Keokuk sank. The persons belonging to the ship lost all their private effects.

On Wednesday, the squadron remained at anchor in the main ship channel. It is said the number of men in four days was only about 1,100, with 30 guns, while the enemy had, it is supposed, at least 300 guns, the best in the fleet.

The injuries to the vessels, excluding the Keokuk, are represented to be of such a character, as will require but a short time for repairs.

Casualties among our men were remarkably few, including one killed and three wounded on the Nantucket.

None of the batteries fired upon our vessels until they reached the vicinity of the main forts.

MADISON, Wis., April 11.

Special to Chicago Tribune.—Our soldiers in the field seem determined to do their utmost to protect themselves against the fire in the rear, as additional returns of the army vote, received to-night, show. The 31st regiment, at Columbus, Ky., gives Dixon 366, Cothren 90; the 33d, at Memphis, complete, gives Dixon 352, Cothren 67; four companies of the 1st cavalry, at Cape Girardeau, give Dixon 94, Cothren 10; 5 companies of the 24 cavalry, at Memphis, give Dixon 138, Cothren 32; 3 companies of the 12th regiment, at Memphis, give Dixon 185, Cothren 72; 2 companies of the 32d, at Memphis, give Dixon 101, Cothren 3; Co. I, 10th regiment, at Island No. 10, gives Dixon 47, Cothren none. Returns from other scattered companies. Returns from other scattered companies, including the heavy artillery on Arlington Heights, added to the above, in 38 companies, received to-night, give Dixon 1378, Cothren 271, the latter getting one-fifth of the votes. Returns from the state, to-night, give hope that Dixon has a majority on the home vote. He gains nearly 700 in La Crosse county, and somewhat in Waushara, Sheboygan, Ozaukee, Outagamie, Monroe and Washington counties.

HEADQUARTERS ARMY OF THE TOWNSHIP, April 11.

A refugee who left Richmond last Friday, has arrived in our lines. The broad riot in that city was witnessed by him, and caused the greatest consternation among the authorities. The women were the heads of families of the working classes, and were actually starving—many having been compelled to beg on the street. A repetition of the demonstration was feared, and very precaution was being taken to avert it. The effect upon the troops was very demoralizing, the men being very clamorous and demanding that their families should be fed.

Reinforcements are hurrying up to Frederickburg as rapidly as possible, most of them conscripts and convalescents. Several divisions are encamped about Richmond, one of which started off in great haste at the time Averill visited Colpepper, but returned again in a few days. Work has been suspended upon the fortifications around Richmond, their impregnability being considered certain. Batteries are being thrown up along the Rapidan river, but the force at that vicinity is composed chiefly of cavalry.

Two gunboats, iron-clads, are about in James river. The Virginia lies down near Drury's Bluffs, and has made several attempts to pass the obstructions, but failed. The third is unfinished, but rapidly approaching completion.

INDIANAPOLIS, April 10.

Gen. Turchin and staff passed through here this morning, en route for Nashville. Contracts were let by United States Quartermaster Jiklin, to-day, for 1,100 cavalry horses, at an average price per head of $107.

U. S. Marshal Rose arrived to-day from Evansville, with six persons accused of smuggling goods south. They were held to bail in the sum of $2,000 each.

INDIANAPOLIS, April 10.

The privates and non-commissioned officers of the 33d and 35th Indiana, recently taken at Franklin, have arrived at Camp Parole, Annapolis, Md. An effort is being made to have them transferred to this city, to wait their exchange. Lieut. Col. R. K. Stewart, of the 21 Indiana cavalry, for some time past confined in Richmond and Atlanta, has arrived here. He represents the rebellion as about played out, and says their treatment of our officers was most inhuman and barbarous. He is very bitter against the rebels, and is more determined than ever to fight in earnest.

NEW YORK, April 13.

Richmond papers of the 10th say that the bombardment was not resumed up to the forenoon of the 9th, but was expected next day.

SKIRMISHING occurred to-day at Williamsburg. It is rumored that the rebels are between there and Yorktown, and also are threatening Suffolk. Nothing serious anticipated.

CINCINNATI, April 13.

Burnside issued an order, pronouncing the death penalty on all found guilty of aiding the rebels. Any rebel sympathizers will be arrested and tried, or sent beyond the lines. This order says treason expressed or implied would be tolerated in this department.

NEW YORK, April 12.

Tribune's special.—An account of the Charleston fight says our squadron arrived off Charleston on the morning of the 5th, and spent the day examining the bars and channels. The wind being too high to cross that evening, the admiral disclosed his plan of attack, which was to sail directly up and attack the northwest face of Fort Sumter, at 600 or 800 yards. About 8 o'clock, Monday morning, the signal for the movement was given, and the vessels started slowly. In consequence of a fog, however, they were obliged to postpone the intended attack till the next day. During the afternoon, one of Gen. Faris' brigades worked its way up Folly Island, and established communication with the fleet, but no portion of the land forces got into the attack at all on the 7th.

At 4:15 p. m. the fleet got under weigh, and passed the Morris Island batteries without being fired upon, pushing right on towards Sumter. The new Ironsides worked badly, and in consequence of the current was obliged to anchor two or three times. Fort Moultrie first opened fire upon the Weehawken, which was within 500 yards of Cummings' Point battery. Fort Sumter and battery "B" immediately opened, and the action became general and terrific. The monitors still pushed on, replying vigorously, and passed the north-east face of Fort Sumter, when they discovered three lines of obstructions, holding torpedoes, etc., one of which exploded, but did no great damage.

Finding it impossible to get across the obstructions, they turned back and steamed down the harbor. The Patapsco's 200 pounder had become disabled, and the Pacific so bent that the vessel was actually out of use. Other boats also passed up to the north-east of Sumter till they were also stopped by the obstructions, and returned. After being under fire three quarters of an hour, all the monitors were ordered back, and at 5 o'clock the entire fleet was out of range, and the action ceased.

Admiral Dupont intended to renew the attack next day, but ascertaining that the Keokuk and Passaic were entirely disabled, and three others partially so, concluded to desist, in which he was sustained by all the commanders.

The monitors were hit from 50 to 60 times except the Keokuk, which received about 90 shots, and was penetrated at water mark no less than 19 times. She sank per keel at 11 next morning, when she sank on the bar with her colors flying. All aboard were saved. The Ironsides was hit about sixty times, but not damaged. There are 11 holes in the side of Fort Sumter, apparently running through the walls. The entire firing amounted to only 150 rounds.

When our correspondent left two of the monitors sailed for Fort Royal, and others were to follow. Our entire casualties amounted to 13 in all, two of which were killed.

The Times' special gives the following list of casualties on the Nantucket: Com. Downes, slight contusion in the foot; Pilot Isaac Coffey, severe contusion in the neck and shoulder, died well; Quartermaster Cook, severe contusion of the skull, lacerated head; three seamen slightly. On the Keokuk, Com. A. C. Rhind, contusion of the leg; A. McIntosh, acting ensign, dangerously; R. Nicholson, quartermaster, slightly; three seamen seriously, and seven others slightly.

The New York Herald account says: Rumors are in circulation, both at Fort Royal and at Charleston, that our troops were rapidly gaining the rear of the city of Charleston.

The Times' correspondent says of the Charleston fight: The Union ships were exposed to a concentrated fire from five different points, unparalleled in the history of warfare. The fleet found it impossible to pass beyond Fort Sumter and assume the appointed place, owing to the obstructions which extended across the entire channel from Sumter to Moultrie, while above these, near the middle ground, were three other rows of piles, and above these, three rebel iron-clads. The fleet was thus compelled to sustain this terrific fire, and not only did so, for thirty minutes. During that time, not less than three thousand five hundred shots were fired by the enemy, 100 being counted in a single minute.

BALTIMORE, April 12.

The gunboat Flamborough arrived at Old Point Saturday afternoon, bringing the officers of the iron-clad Keokuk. The following is made up from interesting accounts furnished the Baltimore American by an eye witness, who was in the fight: The Weehawken was assigned an important duty which was faithfully performed, and if possible, free the obstructions which have extended across the harbor from Fort Sumter to Moultrie, protected by the Severn and the "Devil" in front of her. She pushed straight up towards the obstructions. They were found to consist of a net work of chains and cables, over which it was impossible to run, without fouling her propeller, and which she found it impossible to force. To this network the rebels are supposed to have suspended torpedoes and other submarine explosives. Having completed the examination, and tested the impossibility of working up the harbor, she retired until means were devised to remove the obstructions.

AFTERNOON DISPATCHES.

NEW YORK, April 13.

The Times publishes an extract containing detailed account of the fight at Charleston. It says the result of the reconnaissance proves the utter insufficiency of the iron clad to take Charleston alone.

The Nantucket received 30 wounds, several being bad fractures. The Passaic also was wounded severely in the turret and pilot house. The Nantucket's turret is so jarred that the port could not be opened, rendering her 16 inch gun useless. None of the other monitors are disabled.

A steamer from Newbern, N. C., 9th brings the following: It was expected that Gen. Foster would have to surrender from want of provisions. A transport, with 800 men, went on the 7th to reinforce Foster via Tar river, but was obliged to return, in consequence of rebel batteries. Foster's force consists of 1200 men. On the 6th Gen. French, with 6,000 men, endeavored to reinforce Foster via Neuse river, but meeting a superior force they retired. It is said the rebels are marching on Newbern.

Letter from Horace Tompkins.

My Dear Mother:—I can well imagine what your feelings have been for the past three weeks, not knowing whether I was dead or alive. I am happy to be permitted to inform you that I am alive and well, and as happy as one could wish to be in my present unfortunate position, "a prisoner of war," confined in the world-renowned "Libby Prison," in the great city of Richmond, Virginia. I went through the battle without a scratch, and am proud to say to you, dear mother, that my conduct upon the battle field of March 5, 1863, won for me the highest commendations from my commanding officers.

You must not let this unfortunate affair trouble you in the least. Look on the bright side, and all will yet be well. How long we shall be kept here remains to be found out. It may be weeks, it may be months, and it may be until this unholy war has come to an end. Let come what may, I am prepared for the worst.

If we are exchanged very soon, (and we hope to be,) we officers of the western army will probably be sent to Chicago, Ill., there to remain at the camp of instruction until our men are exchanged. If such should be the case, and I should be sent to Chicago, I shall try and get leave of absence for a few days to pay you a visit. If that cannot be done I shall send for you all to come and see me, for I am bound to see you all once more before I again go into the field.

We were captured on the 5th of March, and were two weeks on the way here. It was an awful trip, one that I shall long remember. When we do meet again I shall be able to interest you for several hours with an account of what I have experienced in the southern confederacy.

Your affectionate son,

HORACE.

Auction.—Mr. H. Neate (auctioneer) proposes selling, in parcels, to the highest bidder, a good stock of groceries, to-morrow afternoon, at 1 o'clock. For location, and further particulars, see our "New Advertisements."

FIRE.—Last Thursday afternoon, the dwelling-house of John Arnold, of the town of Plymouth, was burned, together with its contents. Supposed to have caught fire from the stove-pipe or chimney. Loss $1,500. Insured in the Madison Mutual for $850.

MICHIGAN.—The republicans of Michigan nominated a straight republican ticket this spring, which they elected on Tuesday last by a handsome majority.—Madison Journal.

This is a good example for Wisconsin republicans to follow.

THE NEXT CONGRESS.—As far as elected the next House of Representatives will stand 85 republicans and 74 democrats. Among the latter, is Rollins of Missouri, a union democrat. Members from Vermont, West Virginia, California, Maryland, Kentucky, and to fill vacancy in Missouri, are yet to be elected.
